'Lil Abner' slated for weekend productions

The Broadway musical, Lil Abner will be presented at Appomattox County High School on March 23 and 24 at 8 p.m.

The memorable comic strip characters of Abner, Daisy Mae, and Mammy Yokum will come to life on stage as the audience is transported to the tiny village of Dogpatch. The story surrounds the efforts of the hillbillies to keep their town from becoming a testing ground for nuclear weapons. Complications ensue as the villianous General Bullmoose learns the effects of Mammy Yokum's "Yokumberry Tonic." The outsiders go so far as to infiltrate the traditional Sadie Hawkins Day Race. The audience will be cheering them on as the unsophisticated Dogpatchers take on the society people of Washington.

Li'l Abner is being sponsored by the class of 1984 and features many out-standing seniors as well as some very talented underclassmen. The roles of Abner and Daisy Mae are being played by Jay Wingfield and Tambra Hamlett. This is the first acting experience for these performers, but both have been seen in recent Chorale productions. Malcolm Miller as Marrying Sam is also making his A.C.H.S. acting debut, although he has been seen in Depot Dramatics as well as Chorale performances. Veteran Maria King has been cast as Mammy Yokum, while newcomer Lewis Napier adeptly plays the loveable, but hen-pecked Pappy. The audience will be pleasantly surprised by the acting talent of football star Scott Almond as he portrays Earthquake McGoon. Mike McCoy, another seasoned performer, will bring to life the detestable characters of General Bullmoose. Supporting roles will be played by Cecil Jacobs (Jack S. Phogbound), Eve Thomas (Moonbeam McSwine), Todd Thompson (Dr. Finadale), Margaretta Flood (Appassionata), and Lisa Pannell (Evil Eye Fleagle).

Songs from Li'l Abner vary from the romantic "Love in a Home" to the knee-slapping, toe-tapping "Jubilation T. Cornpone." Male audience members may agree with "If I Had My Druthers", while others might relate to "I'm Past My Prime." The jazzy 'Progress of the Root of All Evil" and the humor of "The Matrimonial Stomp" add variety to the show.

The cast and crew of Li'l Abner have been in rehearsal for six-weeks learning lines, songs and dances. Their hard work promises to pay off in a delightful evening of entertainment.

The show is being directed by Joyce Sweet with Renee Williams serving as musical director and Bonnie Hayes acting as choreographer.

Curtain time is 8:00 Friday and Saturday evenings. The public is invited to enjoy a charming performance while supporting local young people. Admission will be $2.00 for students and $3.00 for adults.
